Unsolicited Materials Policy

We appreciate your interest in our company and services. However, we do not accept or consider unsolicited materials, ideas, suggestions, proposals, or other creative submissions of any kind.

What This Includes

This policy applies to all unsolicited submissions, including but not limited to:

- Scripts, treatments, or story ideas
- Product concepts or designs
- Business proposals or pitches
- Marketing ideas or campaigns
- Artwork, music, or other creative works
- Inventions or technical solutions

Why We Have This Policy

We receive a high volume of inquiries and have established this policy to:

- Avoid potential misunderstandings or disputes regarding ownership of ideas
- Protect both our company and submitters from future legal complications
- Focus our resources on internally developed projects and authorized partnerships

What Happens to Unsolicited Submissions

Any unsolicited materials sent to us, whether through email, mail, social media, or any other channel, will be deleted or discarded without review. We will not:

- Review or evaluate the materials
- Return the materials to you
- Enter into any confidentiality obligation regarding the materials
- Compensate you for any use of similar ideas we may independently develop

Authorized Submissions

If you have been specifically invited by a representative of our company to submit materials, please ensure you have written confirmation of this invitation. All authorized submissions should follow the process outlined by your company contact.

Thank you for your understanding.
